OVERVIEW

Ben Walsh will guide delegates through a day investigating how the technologies of today can bring alive the stories and lessons of yesterday for the digital citizens we teach.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

This event is aimed at Secondary History teachers old and new who are open to change and enhancing teaching & learning by adopting new resources, strategies and techniques.

WHAT IS THE PROGRAMME?

The day will include four workshops:

- ✓ Narrative, sequencing and chronology in the History classroom
- ✓ Getting students excited about archives and evidence
- ✓ Making historical interpretation accessible
- ✓ Further developments in History

HOW WILL I BENEFIT?

Ben has spent time evaluating what's out there so you don't have to! In recognition of the time that teachers don't have to browse online curriculum materials, you will be introduced to a range of quality resources that you will want to incorporate into your planning.

WHAT WILL I LEARN?

Many students struggle with the more complex areas of History, such as using original sources or making historical interpretations.

Ben will demonstrate how integrating new digital resources into existing lesson plans can help teachers to help students tackle some of these challenging areas.

An optional two-day follow-up to this course will be available in 2017.
